

Sally Venn

GP

Sally has worked as a part time GP in Abertillery, South Wales for over 15 years, with a short break in 1996 when she spent 18 months working in community development in rural South India. She has been a member of the Royal College of General Practitioners since 1989 and a member of the Faculty of Public Health since 2005. In addition to her practice commitment she also works as a Primary Medical Care Advisor for the National Public Health Service for Wales and is interested in promoting public health within primary care. She has been a key player in launching and promoting the Welsh Backs campaign (<http://www.welshbacks.com>) and hopes to use this experience to support WaMH in PC in the dissemination of the Gold Standard Project to all primary care practitioners in Wales.
